Let's Start!

The future is around the corner!

Learning Outcome

Understand detailed descriptions of real or imaginary events and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about education and character traits.
- I can discuss plans, hopes and expectations for the future.
- I can talk about what I will have done.

Ask your partner:

- How much time do you spend thinking about the future?
- How will you have changed in 10 years from now?

Let's Explore!

Peter and Vanessa contemplate the future.

* "To contemplate" means to think about something for a long time.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Peter: Once you meet the right dude, you'll settle down and get hitched.
- Vanessa: Before I meet the "right dude", I'll have my own bistro up and running.
- Peter: And as soon as that happens, you'll have no time to meet anyone.
- Vanessa: I'm not in that much of a rush. I'll be working hard over the next two years. I'm sure I'll have met someone by the time I am twenty-eight. That seems reasonable.
- Peter: I'm not sure I'll have met anyone by the time I'm thirty. You are so positive and sure of yourself.
- Vanessa: When you realize what a good guy you are, you will meet someone. You are only standing in your own way, Peter. By the time we are in our fifties we'll have had many conversations about our days of youth and a few chuckles about our self-doubt.
- Peter: Maybe. I feel similarly to you, V. Until I have my career where I want it to be, I will not likely be ready for anything serious.
- Vanessa: Never say never. If you meet someone who is on the same page as you as far as their career is concerned, you will make it work! A few years from now, I think your career will have flourished. If you want my honest opinion Peter, you should take the life-coaching course I did.
- Peter: So, with a bit more support you think I'll have reached my goals by the time I'm thirty five?
- Vanessa: You already know the answer to that question.

Learning Points

Peter and Vanessa are talking about their future.

You use time clauses to give information about time and sequence in future actions.

You use the words once, while, as soon as, until, If, When, Before and After in time clauses. Future time clauses explain what needs to happen or which condition needs to be satisfied before a future event can occur.

You use the first conditional with these time clauses.

Structure:

As soon as/Until/If/When/Before/After + Subject + Simple Present tense, Subject + will/be going to + Simple Present tense

Once means as soon as or when. An action in the future will occur the moment the action introduced by the time clause finishes.

Example:

Once you meet the right dude, you'll settle down.

While means during that time or at the same time as an action. You normally use while after the main clause.

Example:

I'll be busy working at the restaurant while you have fun tonight.

As soon as means immediately after. An action in the future will occur immediately after the action introduced by the time clause finishes.

Example:

As soon as I have my career where I want it to be, I will be ready for something serious.

Before means at an earlier time. An action in the future needs to be completed before the action introduced by the time clause can occur.

Example:

Before I meet the right dude, I'll have my own bistro.

After means at a later time. The action introduced by the time clause will lead to another action right after it is completed.

Example:

After you share your presentation, we will have a little celebration.

If means on the condition that ...

If you meet someone who's worth it, you'll make it work.

Learning Points

When means at the time of doing something.

When you meet that special someone, you'll know immediately.

Examples:

- Once you meet the right dude, you'll settle down and get hitched.
- Before I meet the "right dude", I'll have my own bistro up and running.
- And as soon as that happens, you'll have no time to meet anyone.

Future Perfect Tense To express Certainty and Strong Opinion

You use the Future Perfect to talk about something that will be finished by a certain time in the future. You can also express a strong opinion about a future event or express certainty with the Future Perfect.

When you use the Future Perfect, you can sometimes think of the Future Perfect tense like the Present Perfect tense, but instead of your viewpoint being in the present, it is in the future.

The Future Perfect is also used to express certainty of a future event being completed or to convey a strong opinion about a future event.

You can use expressions like I'm sure ... or I really think ... to express certainty with the Future Perfect.

The Future Perfect has two forms:

will have + past participle, or am/is/are + going to have + past participle

Example:

I'm sure I'll have met someone by the time I'm twenty-eight.

I really think your career will have flourished a few years from now.

Examples:

- In our fifties we'll have had many conversations about our days of youth and a few chuckles about our self-doubt.
- I think your career will have flourished.
- I'm not sure I'll have met anyone by the time I'm thirty.
